Working with you to deliver teacher development programmes

Our teacher development programmes provide you with the opportunity to benchmark teaching standards and see positive improvements in the classroom. Our experts work closely with schools, governments and ministries around the world to understand teachers' skills and create a bespoke programme to help improve teaching quality. We can build a programme using our internationally respected teaching qualifications and courses (found on pages 6, 7, 10 and 11), which can be taken individually or in combination.

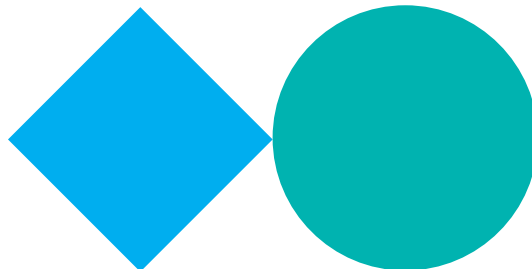

Our range of teaching qualifications and courses helps you to:

- improve your teachers' language proficiency
- deliver language-learning programmes tailored to your local requirements
- develop your teachers' practical classroom skills
- build your capacity to train teachers
- evaluate your teachers' professional knowledge.

In this example, teachers take a Cambridge English language test to ensure they have the appropriate level of English, and then join the CELT-P/CELT-S course to develop their classroom teaching skills.

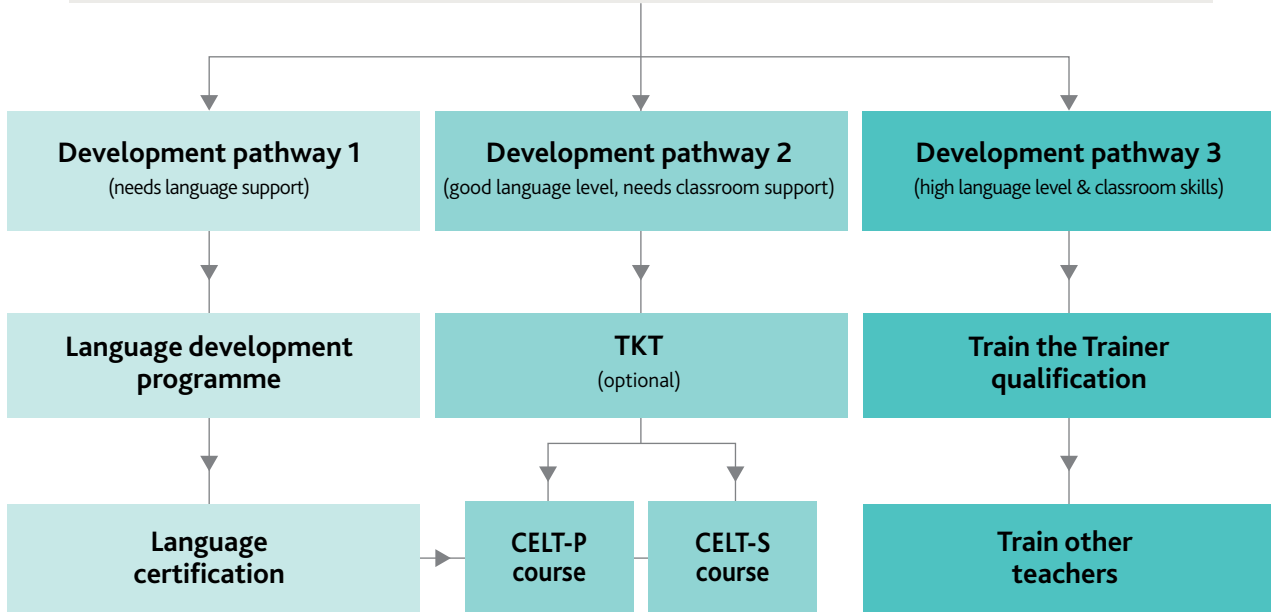

See examples of how we work with ministries of education, institutions and schools:

In this more comprehensive programme example, teachers take a Cambridge English language test and a teaching knowledge test. Based on the outcomes of these tests and their level of skills and experience, they are assigned to different development pathways.

Panama Bilingue – The Ministry of Education of Panama

In 2015 the Ministry of Education of Panama (MEDUCA) committed to a national programme of training to raise standards of English language teaching and increase the number of English teachers – Panama Bilingue. We worked closely with MEDUCA to deliver teacher training programmes.

A representative of the project said: 'Working closely with advisors from Cambridge Assessment English, we selected the CELT-P and CELT-S qualifications to introduce new techniques and methodologies and build the professional development of our English teachers across the country.'

'We also chose the Train the Trainer course for a number of more experienced primary and secondary teachers.'

'The courses were conducted in 2017, and the successful participants became expert instructors, going on to run training courses for 500 teachers across Panama.'

'We are continuing to work with Cambridge English to achieve our long-term objectives. We are now establishing a programme of continuous professional development for our teachers to improve national teacher training standards.'

In 2018 we followed up on the Panama Bilingue project with a survey of the teachers we trained. They told us:

'My experience was excellent. I learned a lot and everything I learned I put into practice in my classes.'

'I feel pleased to have new methodologies and techniques of teaching teenagers and to refresh my own knowledge too.'

'This course was an excellent way to reinforce knowledge and to learn new techniques that I adapted in my classroom.'

We surveyed 186 teachers who had taken CELT-P or CELT-S.

Over 90% said that their courses:

- met their training needs
- were easy to apply to their teaching context
- made them feel more confident as teachers.

We also surveyed 40 Train the Trainer candidates.

Over 80% said the course:

- was appropriate for their primary or secondary contexts
- made them feel more confident as a teacher trainer.

“TKT helped me consolidate my knowledge of ELT methodology. I also think the preparation materials are well designed and really useful.”

New Oriental Education and Technology Group

New Oriental is China's largest provider of private education services, offering a wide range of educational programmes, including English language learning.

Jocelyn Wang, Director of the Teaching Management & Development Centre at New Oriental, explained how they have been using our range of teaching qualifications and courses, and the benefits they provide.

'We've been using Cambridge English teaching qualifications with our teachers for nearly 20 years. We now use TKT, CELTA, CELT-P, CELT-S and Train the Trainer, and we are planning to start using DELTA soon.'

'We selected TKT because it's an internationally recognised qualification, and because the Cambridge name is associated with high-quality qualifications.'

'TKT is a good starting point for getting teachers to appreciate the benefits of Continuing Professional Development, and it is now mandatory for all our English teachers to take TKT within their first year of teaching. We provide our own programme of preparation and support for the tests.'

"We selected TKT because it's an internationally recognised qualification, and because the Cambridge name is associated with high-quality qualifications."

'CELTA is the next step up from TKT for our teachers and we've recently become a CELTA centre. Becoming a centre has allowed us to use CELTA's flexible delivery options, meaning we don't need to send our teachers out to other centres for training. We also use CELT-P and CELT-S to provide appropriate development for teachers working with learners of primary and secondary school age.'

'Development has become an increasingly important part of New Oriental's teaching culture and the Cambridge English Teaching Framework sits well within our own professional development framework. Cambridge English teaching qualifications work very well alongside the professional development solutions we have developed ourselves.'
